When a new customer comes to Billie Cade. he asks them this riddle: What is 94-years-old. has 8,000 square feet, took six weeks and 150 gallons of paint in six different colors to paint?"

"I tell them it's the house on 15th (Street) and Euclid," said Cade, an Ontario house painter.

The house, built in 1890 by Upland citrus grower Charles Harwood, is a typically Victorian grove home.

Typical, that is, except for the six colors pony, light gold, dark gold, chocolate brown, bright orange and bright yellow.

"It's definitely a Michelangelo job, not just a 'blow and go," said Cade, who is still putting the finishing touches on the large home.

Cade likened the color scheme to a woman's make-up. Each separate layer attempts to enhance the other, Cade said.

Maintaining a balance of colors was essential, Cade added.

"That was probably the major consideration I had," Cade said. Priorities on using the colors were set, he said.

Cade, who painted the house for owners Alan and Sharon Kaitz during May and June, had only been painting homes for the past year and a half when he ran into Kaitz.

Kaitz, brimming with innovative ideas about how to paint the house, contracted Cade — the beginning of the painter's career in restoring old homes.

Inspired by the so-called "painted lady"

Victorian houses in San Francisco, Kaitz wanted to change the personality of the house. Making the move from two-tone blue began with Kaitz and Cade looking at earth tones.

The contrasting colors came next. Mrs. Kaitz said she wasn't sold on the idea at first.

"That took some convincing on my part," Mrs. Kaitz said. She conceded she was still hesitant about the bright tones.

"I think it would be real nice without the yellow," she smiled. But, "It's such a big house that six colors is not so bad."

Built in 1890 by Upland citrus pioneer Charles E. Harwood, the house is one of the city's orginal grove homes, according to Cade.

Harwood, known as the "Grand Old Man of Upland," was first president of the Upland Lemon Growers Association, a position he held for 40 years. Early newspaper accounts credit Harwood for sticking with the citrus industry despite numerous setbacks.

A lawyer and banker, Harwood settled in Upland after moving west to find a better climate for his wife.

The three-story house has an estimated 8,000 square feet. Mrs. Kaitz said they were attracted the house because of its 20-room floorplan, which includes a darkroom, an attic, six fireplaces and five bedrooms. A carriage house is behind the house on the nearly two-acre lot.

For most of the house's 94 years, only five families have owned it, Mrs. Kaitz said. She and her husband became the fifth owners when they purchased the house nine months ago.

But it was Cade who changed the house's personality.

"All the other painters in this area appreciate the job that's been done," said Cade, who began his painting business by covering graffiti for the city of Ontario.

His goal in painting the Harwood house was consistency - "making the top window look as good as the bottom," he said.

He credited the owners for being bold enough to select six bold colors on the otherwise quiet home.

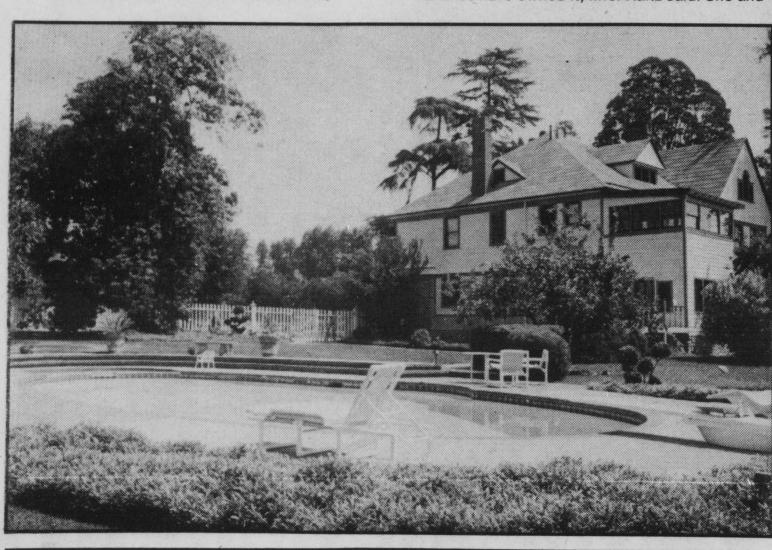

"I would applaud the owners for having that courage," Cade said.

Like many older homes, the Harwood house is replete with legends and rumors of buried

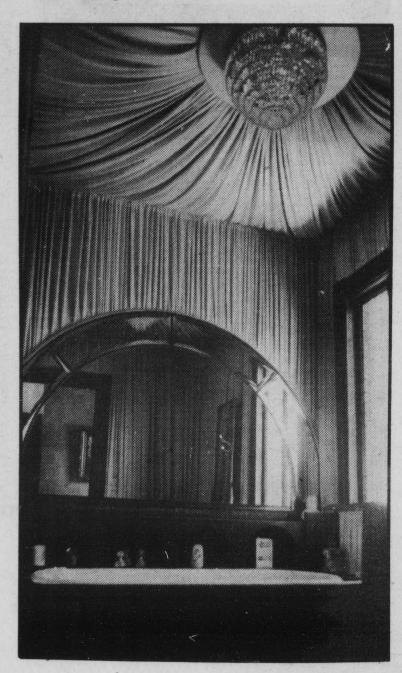

Alan Kaitz is certain money is hidden in the house, though his wife remains skeptical. Spurred by the discovery of a false wall and a hidden passageway in the home, he and Cade have been knocking on walls and prying floor boards loose in search of the rumored loot.

"We really don't know if there's hidden money," Mrs. Kaitz stressed.

"I'd rather just let the stuff be there if its been there this long," she added.

Story by Chris Keating

Besides the wide variety of fruit trees on the Euclid Avenue estate, a spacious pool occupies part of the backyard (far left). Inside, the second floor bathroom (left) has been redecorated with opulent fixtures. Painter Billie Cade (above) continues with final touches to the trim on the home's front. Recent additions to the home by owners Alan and Sharon Kaitz include statuary and specially commissioned stained glass windows (top and bottom right). Bob the robot could make life easier

Imagine having a servant to mow your lawn, vacuum your living room, and bring you cold drinks while you oversee the procedure.

Imagine having your own personal fire department and security guard that never sleeps and run on batteries.

Within the next decade, all these services may be available to the public through the use of robots, said members of the Inland Empire Robotics Association which held a founding meeting recently at the Upland Library.

The association confronts issues that relate to personal robots for domestic use.

Computer programmers, electronic hobbists and video game addicts attended the session.

"I can see the day when a robot will go into the kitchen, pop open a can of beer and bring it to you so you won't miss a minute of the Super Bowl," said Harry Stone, group organizer and owner of an Upland store that sells robots.

There actually is a robot that detects and extinguishes fires. The robot, "Chip", won first place for dousing a small fire with water in the Tournament of Robots held in Santa Ana.

"On a larger scale, he might be useful," Stone said.

There is "EZ Mower," a radiocontrolled lawn mowing robot, the Androbot Co.'s "BOB," a robot that can go into the kitchen and return with a sixpack and robots that use infrared sensors and measure temperature emission to tell the difference between a chair, an animal and a human.

The RB Robot Corp. had a vacuuming robot, but it was taken off the market.

"The robot's drive motor wouldn't pull the vacuum while it (the vacuum) was operating," Stone said.

Many of the robots that perform domestic functions such as mowing the lawn are still prototypes and need improvements before they can be sold to the public.

"It tries to rip its arm off, runs into walls and talks to itself," one robotics association member said of the problems encountered with his Hero robot.

Most robot operating problems are mechanical such as burned out motors or stripped gear boxes. But the personal robot's biggest obstacle may be safety.

"One of the biggest problems with robots is legal," Stone said in citing the potential dangers of a lawn mowing robot.

A lawn mower could become a dangerous weapon if the robot malfunctioned while operating it. And the legal responsibilities could become difficult to trace, he said.

Stone also cited an incident in which a chess playing robot struck a child in the face with its mechanical arm. The arm had to be slowed down, and the company was nearly ruined by the legal battle that ensued, he said.

Robots now available to the public are mainly entertainment or educational units.

"It can walk around your party and say nice things to people," Stone said of the capabilities of the RB5X robot he stocks in his shop.

The RB5X plays math games and a distance guessing game (using built-in sonar) in which players guess how far a certain object is and the robot announces the winner closest to the actual distance.

Made by the RB Robot Corp., the RB5X also serves as a guard service being able to detect moving objects with its sonar. The power pack used in the RB5X lasts from four to 10 hours, depending on the type used. Before the system can deplete its charge, the robot is programmed to return to its charging base.

Turtle, another robot currently marketed, serves more as an educational unit and is designed to be programmed and operated while hooked to a computer.

Popular with elementary schools, the Turtle is meant to teach computer programming to children by showing them the robot's movement as result of their efforts.

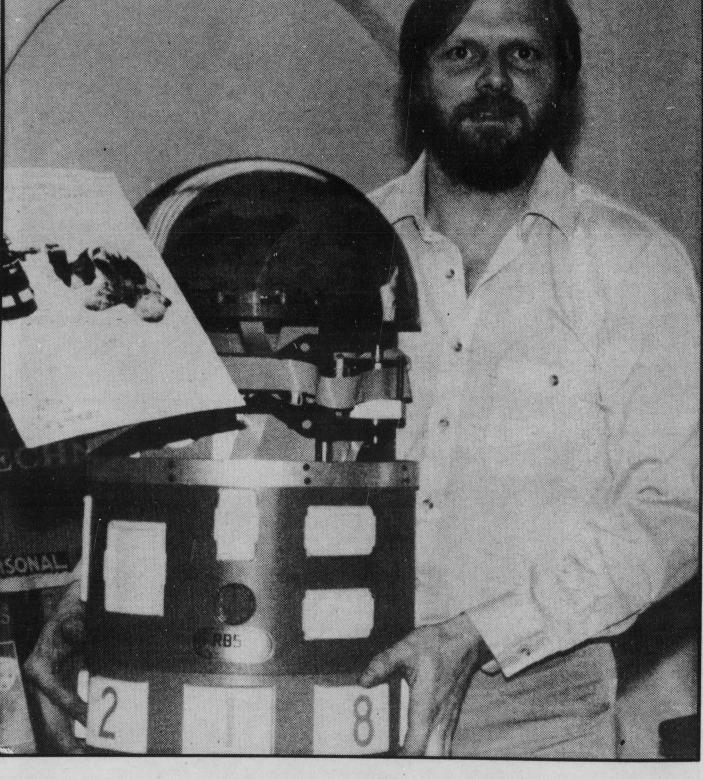

"It gives more of a feel for programming and computers," Stone said.

And next year, the first robot ping-pong contest is scheduled to be held in England.

Designers face the problems of enabling the mechanical arm to hit a ping-pong ball and the robot's ability to "see" the ball's three-dimensional motion using a series of two-dimensional images.

The recent meeting featured three home-built mini-robots that used sound sensors to negotiate movement. A hand clap or snap of the fingers caused each of the miniatures to change its direction.

In all, the group seemed optimistic about the future of robots and their use. But for right now personal robotics is in its infancy as far as capabilities are concerned.

"If your looking for a real use, you may have to wait until next year," Stone said. "Right now the field is so new that the people in it are hobbists."

Many who attended the meeting expressed an interest to learn more about robotics itself and to become a part of a new technological field's beginning before it booms.

Industrial robots are currently used as welders on auto assembly lines and as lathe operators and in other jobs. But the application of robots, the assocation agreed, could not displace all workers in the future.

Assembly and many traditional factory jobs would be eliminated by robots, the group predicted. But other high-technology jobs would be created as the need for robot maintenance grows and the demand for higher skill levels rises.

The demand for craftsmen may even grow as a result of a robot work force.

"A robot factory can turn out plenty of chairs for everyone cheaply with nolabor and now wages,"said Stone. "But an old Brentwood chair is still going to be a valuable commodity."

"Our pace of change has quickened, and I think robots will do the same," he added. "I hope by next summer I can have my lawn mowed (by a robot)."

Fund-raising a success with league

By Joy Sommer-Dahlem

Wrapping a year of fundraising and community service, the Upland Assistance League recently released its final figures on hours donated and money raised for the 1983-84 year.

A total of nearly $33,000 was raised through the five annual fund-raisers — the Patroness Tea in October, the Christmas Tea Brunch in December, the Antique Seminar in February, the fashion show in April and the bridge groups held throughout the year.

The philanthropies of the Assistance League — the San Antonio Hospital Dental Center, the Rancho Cucamonga Girl's Club and SAT preparatory classes - are supported by the money raised by the league through fund-raisers.

The bulk of the money, as usual, was the result of the fashion show held this year at the the Industry Hills Conference Center. "Olympian Fantasy" was attended by 701 guests and netted a surplus of $17,421.50. Under the direction of Mrs. Michael Gamson and Mrs. Walter Saccani and their committee, members donated 2,136 hours.

The Christmas Tree Brunch, held at the Red Lion Inn, netted the league coffers $7,838.80. The 414 guests attending bought tickets for chances on the six decorated Christmas trees and the gourmet basket that were given away that day. Hours donated mounted up to 932.5. Money raised at the boutique, operated by the Assisteens, went to the Assisteen philanthropies.

The Patroness Tea, held at the home of league member Mrs. Jeffrey Schlosser in Alta Loma, honored life members, sustaining members and 233 patronesses. Members contributed 601.5 hours and realized a net surplus of $5,088.65.

During the year, $1,600.12 was raised by the 124 players in the three-day-and-two-evening bridge groups. It involved a total of 91 volunteer hours.

The fourth antique seminar netted $712.19 and was attended by 90 guests. To arrange the details of the seminar and serve the lunch, 331 hours were donated by members. The hours report, present by Chairman Mrs. Ralph Cavallo showed members had given a total of 13,835.5 service hours during the last year.

It broke down, Cavallo said, in the projects area to 2,402 hours (56 members participating) at the dental center, 1,510.5 hours (59 members) for Girls' Club and 106 hours (17 members) for the SAT on the fund-raising projects, league members also volunteered 415 hours with 52 members for league luncheons, bringing the total to 4,607.5.

In addition to the hours used

Immediate Family

There's no more fun in this world than having the entire family together. Mom, Dad, and the kids gathering for a real old fashioned frolic. And this includes the family pets Bazel, the mut and Crash, the cat . . . teasing and romping. Such outbursts of happiness can take place in the yard, living room, under the dining table, or on the bed. Pets are referred to as part of extended-family are IMMEDIATEfamily. Somehow, there is a tendency to assume that all pets are healthier than the rest of the family. After all, the cat never misses school and the dog never complains of a headache.

Don't assume your pet is not suffering from an illness. These family members are not intentionally neglected, but there is only one sure way to know your pet is in good health. Have him/her checked at least once a year.

Dave Soden chosen R.C. principal

By Josie Garza

Dave Soden now has a job he can call his own principal of Cucamonga Junior High School.

For the past year and a half, Soden has shifted back and forth between jobs as coach and assistant principal at the school where he's worked 10 years.

"It was really a year and a half of uncertainty, not knowing what I was going to do. I think I learned patience," Soden said after the Central School District trustees' announcement.

Soden, 32, will be responsible for 750 seventhand eighth-grade students, 50 sixth-graders and 32 teachers. Claudia Maidenburg has been named assistant principal.

"I had always looked at myself as a principal of a school and teaching as a temporary thing. I was really surprised (about the official appointment) though," said Soden, 32.

The Upland resident was acting principal during the spring semester last year. Teacher Edith Miller served as an unofficial assistant principal for two class periods a day.

"My first thought was assistant principal three or four years. The opportunity then opened up and I'm real excited about it. It's fun to become a principal at a school where you grew up with the teachers."

Soden said he feels he's in an unusual situation where teachers are predominately young.

"We really support each other. Most teachers have worked for the district 10 years," he said.

Cucamonga Junior High School has changed a great deal during the past decade.

Much of the time, it was considered an intermediate school despite the "junior high" sign outside the administration building. The school was labeled an intermediate school by the county superintendent of schools because of the many sixth graders who attended.

Next year, the school will be regaining its official "junior high" status for the first time in 10 years.

Although 50 sixth graders will be attending the school, the youngsters will be taking part in a new program that will intermingle them with junior high students for three periods a day.

"I'm really excited about it," said Soden.

The new principal's shortterm goals include creating an atmosphere at the junior high where students take pride in the school and feel a part of it.

He received his bachelor's degree in economics and business from the University of La Verne. While attending ULV, he played football and was on the track team.

At La Verne, Soden met and married the former Kathy Schlenker. They have two children, Ryan and Brooke. Kathy Soden is a substitute teacher for the Upland School District.

Etiwanda students gird for new year

By Josie Garza

Etiwanda High School students expressed mixed feelings about the impending school year.

New and returning students went last week to the new school to pick up their class schedules, have their photographs taken and to chat with friends.

Etiwanda opened for the first time the second semester of the last school year.

Frank Gonzales, senior, said he looks forward to being in the first graduating class of Etiwanda High School.

"I'm excited just being able to be in the (graduating) class for the record and for being able to set the traditions," said Gonzales, the associated student body treasurer.

Matthew Dodd, sophomore, said he also is looking forward to school starting. "Summer has been slightly boring. I have had a lot of time on my hands."

But he didn't like Etiwanda High's starting date of Sept. 5.

"I don't think it should start on a Wednesday," he said.

"Why so early?" asked Cindy Barden as she stood in line to speak to a counselor.

"I'm ready to to be a senior next year. That's fine, seeing all my friends and stuff, but coming back so early is another story. I felt like taking another week, but I guess not," she said.

Many seniors returned to Etiwanda wearing either suits or dressy clothes for their graduation photographs shot at the school.

"I feel real excited because we're the first graduating class. I think it's going to a real good year," said senior Denise Bermudez, while on her way to have her graduation picture taken.

Seniors appeared confident as they strolled up and down the hallways.

Freshmen, on the other hand, looked somewhat bewildered as they walked around the campus.

Greg Cardenas, a freshman, said he is somewhat "scared" about his move onto the high school.

Kathy Frey

Incoming freshman Rusty Burch gets advice from an Etiwanda High School counselor after he picks up his class schedule.

"I've never been to a real big school," he said. Cardenas attended Etiwanda Intermediate School last year. He said he has spent his summer going on trips with his family.

He plans to go out for the football team this year.

Underclassman returned to the school wearing their summer best in T-shirts, shorts and checkered tennis shoes.

Total turnout for the first pre-back-to-school activity, which ended Wednesday, was estimated at 80 percent of the estimated 1,300 student body, according to Remi Tremblay, assistant principal of activities.

Tremblay said students who didn't participate in the program distribution and other activities will have to wait until the school year starts.

a ... body by Jake.

And Sandy Carradine, in need of an exemplary figure for a Club Med TV commercial, encounters a Brooklyn-born bodybuilder with a penchant for pain and begins to reshape her muscles into a ... you guessed it ... body by Jake.

Bodies by Jake — they're right off the slant boards and exercise mats, towels, chairs and broomsticks of your own home.

For up to $100 a half hour, Jake Steinfeld will force you to sweat, strain and complain in the privacy of home, barking his Brooklynese, all 232 pounds of him, with his 20-inch biceps, 33-inch waist and thighs you need a passport to get around.

And when the half hour is up, he squeezes into his black Mercedes 380 SL and zooms off to another wealthy, reclusive client. Priscilla Presley, perhaps. Or Amy Irving, Morgan Fairchild, Melissa Manchester, Valerie Perrine, Teri Garr or Margot Kidder.

Steinfeld is one of Hollywood's hottest names, an ex-bouncer and competitive bodybuilder from Brooklyn, N.Y., who four years ago launched a private fitness service that today finds him:

Making the rounds of TV and radio talk shows.

— Touring the country to promote his book, "Body by Jake: The Don't Quit Exercise Program" ($16.95, Simon and Schuster).

 Getting ready to release a Body by Jake videocassette and record album.

 Recruiting "talent" to help him expand his services to New York and London.

He's created a monster of sorts, this 26-year-old celebritycome-lately. There are 86 clients now, he says, and when he's not involved in promoting himself, he's apt to put in 180 miles a day in his Mercedes, from 6 a.m. to midnight, addressing the fitness needs of the privileged — from Malibu to Beverly Hills. And back to Malibu again.

Affluence — he has moved from a Studio City apartment and '77 Camaro to a plush Westwood condo and the Mercedes — has enabled him to reduce his client load from 13 to seven per day.

Steinfeld was out the other day, signing his books and courting the media. Yet none of his clients, he insisted, was being ignored. His brothers, twins Andrew and Peter, 24, equipped with their "Body by Jake" T-shirts and Jake's techniques, were seeing to that.

Still, you got the idea that if Ford needed someone to spot him on his weight bench, or if Spielberg needed an inspiring voice to push him to his 905th sit-up, Steinfeld would come running.

It was on location in Sri Lanka for Spielberg's "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" that Steinfeld says he coaxed Ford into bench pressing an imposing 360 pounds.

And, only months before, the Indiana Jones of the silver screen was maxing out at 80 pounds.

"And Spielberg," says Steinfeld, shaking his head in awe. "He hadn't done anything since the eighth grade when I started working with him. Now he works out six days a week.
He's in great shape."

And not averse, Steinfeld points out, to wear his "Body by Jake" T-shirt on talk shows and give his tutor a well-timed plug.

Reward childrens' good behavior, principal says

By Josie Garza

Brenda McGinnis plans to provide more creative activities, more assemblies and more rewards for childrens' positive behavior in her new role as principal at Carnelian School.

McGinnis said she is starting to get her feet wet in education again after a summer rest.

McGinnis assumed her new role for the first time last week. She was previously assistant principal at Alta Loma School.

McGinnis said she is still working out her ideas for meeting the needs for assemilies, creative activities and rewards for positive behavior.

McGinnis said she also intends to pay special attention to school discipline.. She said she plans to work on discipline with Arcila Aleman, her new assistant principal.

"I don't enjoy discipline but it is something that needs to be done. Kids respect it. I think I'm able to teach them something at the same time," she explained.

"I'm able to discipline a child without destroying his or her self-esteem, setting limits and knowing there are consequences for negative behavior and rewards for positive behavior.

Before her selection as principal, McGinnis worked three and a half years as assistant principal at Alta Loma School. The role of assistant principal has been one traditionally responsible for discipline of children.

Prior to that, the San Bernardino County native worked one and a half years as assistant principal at Alta Loma Junior High School.

McGinnis has been employed by the Alta Loma School District for more than five years.

Before coming to the district, McGinnis worked four years at the Chino School District.

McGinnis said she learned discipline quickly in her first job in education.

The job was teaching the basics of English, reading and math to inmates at California Institution for Men in Chino.

"It was something else, I tell you," laughed McGinnis.

"That was something real hard. I couldn't be real personable with them. I couldn't talk to them on a friendly basis. I'm the type of person who likes to get to know people."

"I needed a job that's why I took it. I grabbed right at it.'

At 32, McGinnis is a woman who has reached a long envisioned goal of becoming a principal.

La Verne girl chosen for OPARC's poster child

Shelley Parker, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Parker of La Verne, is the 1984 Poster Child for the OPARC (Ontario-Pomona Association for Retarded Citizens) Auxiliary's 15th annual ball.

Shelley is the younger of two daughters in the Parker household. Her older sister, Susan, 8, takes great interest in Shelley and is "probably responsible for Shelley's unusually good language development," Mrs. Parker said.

When Shelley was born, the Parkers were told about the COPE (Community Outreach Parent Educator) Program sponsored by OPARC Center.

"COPE got me through many rough times at the beginning—and later. I learned that Down's Syndrome was not all the doom and gloom I was led to believe it would be while I still was in the hospital," Mrs. Parker said.

In addition to receiving help from COPE, Shelley's father, Gerald, has taken family training in the program so the Parkers can help other families.

"Helping other couples helps us, too," Mrs. Parker said.
"Shelley is such a neat little kid. We have learned so much from her. She is so patient and good natured."

The Parker family will be honored guests at the OPARC Auxiliary's ball, to be staged Sept. 15 at Red Hill Country Club, Rancho Cucamonga. It is the major fund-raising event of the auxiliary with proceeds going to OPARC Center's general operating fund to aid in the support of the Day School, the COPE Progam, Diversified Industries and other programs conducted by the center. OPARC is a member of United Way and serves western San Bernardino County and easter portions of Los Angeles County.

ENTERTAINMENT& DINING GUIDE

Nothing like a little white on hot day

By Dan Berger Copley News Service

Summer is most definitely here, which means it's time to run out and buy something cooling. And nothing — except perhaps a beer — goes better beside the pool or under the tree than a bottle of well-chilled Riesling or Gewurztraminer.

And when seeking California wines of those varieties, the choices are obvious: Chateau St. Jean, St. Francis and Joseph Phelps make some of the best in the state in both varieties; the Rieslings of Jekel, J. Lohr, Fetzer, Trefethen, Mondavi, Zaca Mesa and Weibel are always lovely, as are the Gewurztraminers of Rutherford Hill, Pedroncelli, Hacienda and Wente.

I recently staged two tastings of a wide range of wines made from these two varieties, yet I realized the major flaw in these events: No one really worries too much over the subtleties in Riesling and Gewurztraminer, because these are "no brainer" wines.

I don't mean they are for unintelligent people. I mean that when someone makes a choice of either Riesling or Gewurztraminer, he or she doesn't really care whether the wine was first or third in a judging: All that is wanted is something refreshing and cold.

The rationale for doing a "blind tasting" of these varieties with expert tasters was twofold. First, to get the reactions of professionals to various wines without the tasters knowing who made them, and second, to find out if there were any surprises lurking out there in the woods.

Here is the result of the judging of the 1983 California Rieslings — with a few "ringers" thrown in to keep the judges honest (all wines are between $5 and $7):

1. Tie between Kendall
Jackson and Haywood. Both are fresh and appealing, with the Haywood displaying more appley components and a drier finish.
The Kendall Jackson's sweetness is in balance with good acidity.

3. Tie between Chateau St.
Jean "Robert Young Vineyard" and Pedroncelli. The former has a touch more alcohol (12.2 percent) than I like, but ample Riesling character. The latter, in a heavier style, has an aroma of peaches and apricots.

5. Robert Mondavi — Riesling spicyness with sugar balanced against good finishing

crispnes

6. Tie between Obester and Mark Swann (Australian). Both are sweeter than I prefer. The former is more citric in the aroma. The Australian wine has an intensely spicy, honeyed aroma, and is a bit overbearing, but when served very cold is appealing.

8. Tie among Chateau St. Jean "Sonoma County," San Martin "Soft" and Geyser Peak "Geyser Castle." The St. Jean is a touch yeasty, but has decent fruit. The San Martin is fairly sweet, but most appealingly light in the mouth due to only 8 percent alcohol. One taster noted a slight bubble gum aroma. The Geyser Peak has an interesting juniper berry spice aroma, and is fairly sweet.

11. Callaway — Very light aroma, fairly sweet, but clean.

12. Sebastiani Muscat Canelli

— A ringer. The tasters found the aroma curious, and even when told it was a Muscat some voted it down for a sweet, slightly harsh taste.

13. Freemark Abbey - Peachy sort of aroma, made in what one taster said was an old-world tradition, whatever that means.

14. Weibel Green Hungarian —
Another ringer, this nondescript wine is very sweet and cloying yet has an intriguing "musty spice cabinet" aroma.

Nine 1983 Gewurztraminers were tasted the following week, with no ringers. Eight are reviewed, and the ninth was

1. Cranbrook Cellars — This was a near-unanimous choice as the most intriguing wine on the table. A leafy, almost minty aroma and a taste that is soft and fresh, yet finely balanced with acid. This wine is a second label of Monticello Cellars, and it selfs for about $5 a bottle, an excellent buy.

Matrose "Traminer" —
 Spice aroma in a leaner, more food-oriented style of wine. Most appealingly off-dry, with 11.5 percent alcohol.

3. Tie between Wine Discovery and Grand Cru. The former is minty and, said one taster, almost vegetative, and a touch high in alcohol (12.5 percent). The Grand Cru is relatively sweet (1.7 percent residual sugar), and has an intense amount of fruit. Alcohol is 12.1 percent.

Cycling is a soft exercise. This does not mean cycling is an ineffective form of exercise, it simply means cycling is kind to the body.

"You don't put pressure on the weight-bearing joints, the knees," said James McCullagh, editor and publisher of Bicycling magazine. "The medical community has tracked the effects of the bike longer than running.

"The bicycle is absolutely a safe, effective and a compatible activity. We really don't know what a generation of running will Cycling offers many of the same benefits as running lowers the resting pulse rate, improves circulation and lowers the cholesterol level - without harmful stress to the body.

With over 72 million people engaged in bicycling, it usually has been regarded as a fun sport or leisure activity, according to a 1982 Nielson Sports Participation Study.

Recently, however, more newcomers are making bicycling their "lifesport." A lifesport is an activity a person can do for a lifetime as opposed to those competitive, strenuous sports better suited to his or her early years.

McCullagh, who grew up in London riding a bicycle for transportation, has written a book about how to use the bike as a fitness tool. His book, "The Complete Bicycle Fitness Book," serves as a user's guide to cycling for exercise, all-around health and fun.

Included in the book are chapters on how to get started in cycling, how to develop a fitness program, distance riding and nutrition. The book takes an approach similar to the late Jim Fixx's "The Complete Book of Running."

McCullagh says he wrote the guide for two reasons. First, most people never have made the connection between cycling and fitness. Second, most people just don't know how to ride a bike and therefore become discouraged early, abandoning the wheels in a garage corner.

The first common mistake, according to McCullagh, is buying the wrong bicycle.

"There are a lot of junk bikes being sold," he said. "Expect to pay at least a couple of hundred for a good bike." He suggests going to a specialty shop where experienced salespeople can help you pick the right bike.

Buying a good bike is not enough, however. The bike also must fit properly.

"Cardinal rule No. 1," said McCullagh. "You'll make it easier on yourself and cycling will be more fun and rewarding if you ride on a bike that fits."

The bike should be set up for the rider's particular physical needs. A specialty shop can fit the bike to an individual's body before the bike goes out the door.

Saddle height is the single most important aspect of fitting the bike - get this right and the rest follows.

A majority of cyclists ride around with the saddle too low. The National Cycling Coach recommends that when your heels are on the pedals, the saddle should be at a height to permit you to pedal freely without rocking the buttocks from side to side to reach the bottom of the pedal stroke. Your knee will be slightly bent when you put the ball of your foot - the correct part of the foot to use when riding - on the pedal.

Everybody these days seems to be writing survivor manuals, so why not one for numismatists?

That's just what Scott Travers has done — produced The Coin Collector's Survival Manual, a ton of tips for the hobbyist — particularly those in the fledgling numismatist category.

Too often beginning collectors are just starting to gather momentum and take a real interest in what can be a lifelong hobby when they get "taken." And learning a lesson in the rare coin market can be expensive.

If a new collector buys a coin for $250 and later finds out it was worth only $25, you're not likely going to sell him on what a fine hobby numismatics is.

Travers, president of his own coin company and an educational seminar lecturer, hopes his book will teach some valuable lessons to hobby neophytes. And indeed it should do just that.

The Survivor's Manual, with its encyclopedic text and self-help photographs, can quickly make an expert of a novice to the hobby.

In 14 informative chapters, Travers teaches hobbyists how to look at coins the way professionals do.

Among topics covered:

 How to determine what a coin's grade is and how much it's really worth.

 How to tell the difference between uncirculated coins and almost or about uncirculated.

— How to tell the difference between proof and prooflike.

How lighting affects appearance.

— How to detect altered and counterfeit coins.

— How to select and test a coin dealer.

 How to avoid being "ripped off" if you buy coins through the mail.

How to spot cleaned and artificially toned coins.

 How to judge the accuracy of the price guides and make money in coins.

 How to select a nondestructive coin holder and the storage method right for you.

Cycling is "a beautiful entry-level activity," McCullagh said. Fitness never will come if the bike does not fit, though, and if you're not pedaling briskly in a low gear.

A beginning cyclist's first consideration after getting a good bike with the right fit should be riding frequency - getting out a minimum of four times a week. It is important early on to get some time on the bike, to become comfortable with the bike and get the legs and muscles working. Using a low gear in the beginning helps establish cadence, a steady spinning rhythm of the pedals that makes for smooth riding.

Warming up before a ride is a matter of personal preference. Ten minutes or 2 miles of leisurely pedaling in a very low gear is a good way to warm up the body, according to McCullagh.

Once frequency has been established, the cyclist's next consideration should become duration - how long one stays on the bike. To attain a minimum fitness level, McCullagh recommends working up to rides of 20 to 30 minutes four to five

Asked what activities complement a cycling fitness program, he said it is a matter of individual interest.

"Running and swimming are lovely complements," said McCullagh, who also runs marathons when he's not riding the 100-mile event called a "century ride." He has asked professional European road racers what other exercises they do and the response usually is: nothing. Cycling does everything for them, he said.

A complaint with cycling is that it can become boring. To keep the level of enthusiasm high, McCullagh suggests choosing terrain wisely so as not to be discouraged by steep climbs. Also, plan trips with friends, add stops to the route such as for breakfast or lunch, have a definite destination and vary the ride with some interval training.

McCullagh recommends wearing a helmet not only as a prudent safety measure but as a buffer against the sun.

As for other cycling clothing, McCullagh believes it should be functional and not fashionable. "You want to be a tight, neat, aerodynamic unit," he said, adding that investing in a cycling outfit should come only after a bicycling fitness routine is

"Keep in mind," he said, "it's not the length of time you are on a bike, it is how well you use that time you are on a bike.'

"The Complete Bicycle Fitness Book" is published by Warner Books and sells for $7.95 in paperback.

Continuing the domestic animals theme introduced in 1982, this year's health stamps from New Zealand feature three popular breeds of horses -Clydesdales, Shetlands and Thoroughbreds - on stamps of 24 cents plus 2 cents value, 24 plus 2, and 30 plus 2, respectively. They were issued Aug. 1.

Clydesdales are distinguished by a combination weight, size and activity, with exceptionally strong feet and limbs. Their history dates back to the early 18th century, when Flemish stallions were imported into the Clyde Valley in Scotland in an attempt to increase the native draught horses.

Shetlands are one of the smallest, yet strongest. members of the equine world. Their origin is unknown but their existence has been recorded in the Shetland Islands for many centuries. Their height and docile nature make them an ideal saddle pony for a small child.

The descriptive term "Thoroughbred" is synonymous with racehorses. All Throroughbreds are reputed to trace their ancestry back to three Eastern sires — the Darly Arabian, the Godolphin Barb and the Byerley Turk. New Zealand's temperate climate is an ideal environment for breeding Thoroughbreds and the color and spectacle of a race day is part of the New Zealand way of

On Sept. 21, the island of Jersey in the English Channel will issue six stamps, coinciding with the opening day of AUSIPEX '84, the International Philatelic Exhibition held in Melbourne, Australia, and featuring paintings by Jerseyborn artist John Alexander Filfillan.

The artist, born in St. Helier on Christmas day, 1793, ran away to sea at 13 but returned at 23 to establish himself as a painter in Glasgow, Scotland, where he became professor of drawing and painting at Anderson's University. He later emigrated to New Zealand where he was wounded and his wife and several of his children were killed in Maori uprisings. He then moved to Australia and lived in Sydney, Adelaide and Melbourne until his death in 1864.

Painting on the stamps are "Robinson Crusoe Leaves the Wreck" (9 pence), "Edinburgh Castle" (12 pence), "Maori Village" (201/2 pence), "Australian Landscape" (26 pence), "Waterhouse's Corner, Adelaide" (28 pence) and "Captain Cook at Botany Bay" (31 pence).

Since many stamp collectors are also interested in picture post cards, or in the stamps they find on them, some of our readers might like to know about Postacrad Collector (700 E. State St., Iola, WI 54990), a newspaper with articles, columns, news, ads, show calendars and reports on postcard auctions in each issue. It examines the cards from the standpoint of the picture, its stamps, cancellations, and the name and address, as well as the message and its sender. For further information contact the address above. I believe they will also send a sample copy. Ask.

Unicover Corp., (Rod R. Jensen, Univocer Corp., Cheyenne, WY 82008-0001) has announced the introduction of a Maximum Card Collection. Subscribers to the service will receive a maximum card for each U.S. stamp issued up to the 50cent face value for a price of $1 each.

Each maximum card bears a first day of issue postage stamp with a bull's eye type postmark. The entire front on each card is illustrated with an original work of art created to complement the postage stamp. Each work of art was painted by a world class artist and printed on heavy weight stock. A description of the stamp and the artwork appears on the reverse of each card. For further information write the address above.

Volume I of the 1985 Scott Standard Postage Stamp

Q. We recently purchased a female dachshund from a pet store.

We wish to raise and sell registered puppies but we are confused about when to breed her. How old should she be prior to her first breeding? On which day of her cycle should she be bred? We are really looking forward to selling dachshund puppies.

A. The age at which dogs have their first heat cycles is variable. Heat cycles in many dogs begin occurring soon after the age of 6 months. However, it is not unusual for some bitches to be 12 months or older before they have their first heat cycles.

Once a dog has been in heat, she usually comes into heat every 5 to 7 months. However, some female dogs come into heat only once every nine to 12 months.

Most authorities recommend breeding bitches for the first time at the age of 14 to 16 months or at the time of their second heat period. The time to breed for the first time should depend more upon the development of the particular dog than solely upon the chronological age.

Your veterinarian can help you decide the most optimum time for first breeding your dog. The entire heat cycle of the dog usually lasts from 18 to 21 days.

The first half of this period is called preheat or proestrus. The first signs are a swollen vulva, changes in appetite, restlessness and breaking of house training rules. Bleeding from the vulva is seen during this time.

Male dogs are attracted to the bitch during this period. However, the bitch usually is not interested in breeding at this period.

The second half of heat is called estrus. Estrus begins around the ninth day of the heat and continues for the following 7 to 10 days. During this period the vulvar discharge decreases and eventually stops altogether. Estrus is the period of receptivity and most bitches will allow males to breed during this time. Ovulation (release of the eggs from the ovaries) occurs early during the estrus period. Therefore it is recommended that the bitch be bred in the first or second day of estrus or 10 to 12 days after the heat period begins.

There are variations in which days various bitches should be bred. Your veterinarian can determine precisely when your particular bitch should be bred by examining vaginal smears to determine exactly when ovulation occurs.

Following the estrus period, most bitches reject breeding attempts by male dogs. Heat cycles in dogs are relatively long. During this period the female should be confined so that unwanted dogs are not attracted to her.

Prior to breeding your dachshund for the first time, you should take her to your veterinarian for a complete physical examination. Any problems can then be corrected. Particular attention should be given to control of internal and external parasites and immunizations.

Raising puppies can be a very enjoyable activity for the entire

FIESTA TIM

Break-dancing, ethnic foods, rides and carnival games were all a part of this year's 30th annual fiesta, held by Sacred Heart Church in Etiwanda.

The primary purpose of the yearly event is "to bring families together ... to have a good time, food, rides, in a good wholesome atmosphere," the Rev. Ray Rabatsky said.

Adults danced to the mellow-rock tunes by Dave Miron and his band, as children partook of the many carnival rides, sampling roller coaster, pony rides and a castle where they could jump and bounce off the walls.

Bingo attracted the older folks and special breakdancing demonstrations were held during the festivities.

Other activities included carnival games including the ring toss, rides, Mexican and Italian food booths, along with homebaked pastries.

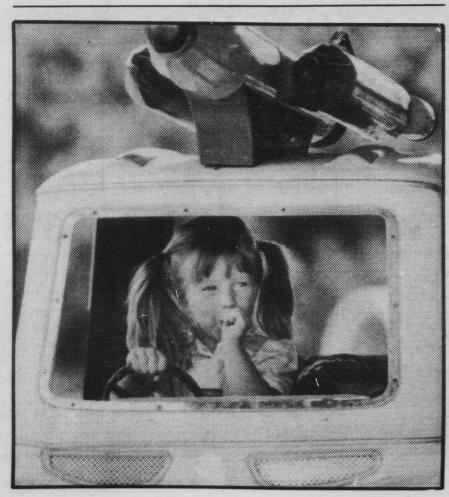

Funds raised will be used to make needed repairs, as well as defray operating costs of the church school, according to Ed Meath a parishioner at Sacred Heart and fiesta organizer.

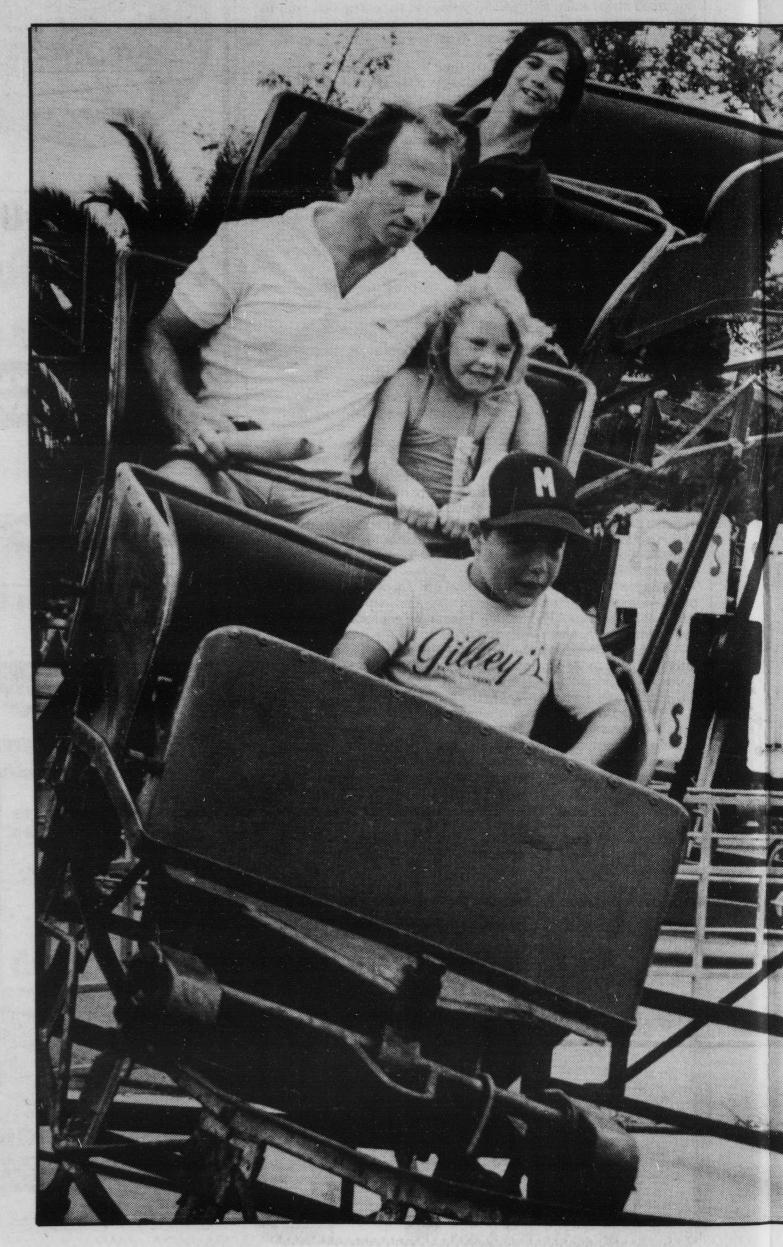

"This year we'd like to redo or re-oil the asphalt, put a new roof on the nun's convent and subsidize the school so tuition doesn't go up," Rabatsky said.

Any monies left from the projects will be put in a contingency fund for any major equipment breakdowns on the church grounds or for use in an emergency, he said.

Meath said last year's fiesta generated $20,000. "We used the money last year for (building) a masonery wall, chain-link fence and to help stave off tuition increase at school," Meath said.

The roller coaster ride (right) which lasted about 30 seconds provided thrills for both young and old, whilefour year-old Krista McCormick (below) of Rancho Cucamonga, takes a spin on one of slower paced rides at Sacred Heart Church's Fiesta.

Break-dancers from DeeDee's Dance Studio in Rancho Cucamonga were part of the entertainment at the fiesta. Chaffey High School student Tony Douglas teaches a class of 40 children how to break-dance.

Steinfeld with a mystique that he equates with Morton's, a Los Angeles restaurant with an unlisted phone number, where you have to "know somebody to get a reservation." But Steinfeld does list his number, he insists, and lately the phone has been ringing off the hook - with requests from Bette Midler, Marlo Thomas and Carol Burnett, none of whom, it seems, has a "body by mistake" to start with.

Perhaps there is more mystique than technique to the Steinfeld system. The 30-minute routines are basic strength, flexibility and aerobic exercises. The emphasis is on speed and motivation. And if you don't like weights ("A lot of people are intimidated by a black dumbbell," says Steinfeld.), he provides a series of resistance exercises using chairs and bathroom towels.

"Exercise," he says, "is very boring. You have to make yourself like it. The mind likes new, innovative things. Going out and running 2 miles on the same course every day is like pushing a button. You reach the saturation point. The body gets routines. Only his exuberance stays the same.

"When I started this," he confides, "I thought I'd be with a client maybe three weeks at the most. I figured they would say, 'I've got to do a film and I'll be back in five weeks,' then forget about me.

'But, hey, clients are paying in advance to reserve times."

It all started four years ago when Steinfeld, fresh out of a job as the "Incredible Hulk" on Universal Studio tours, met Keith Carradine's wife, Sandy, at a party. She checked out the arms and chest Steinfeld had developed as a bodybuilder (he was once a Mr. Southern California runner-up) and asked for some tips on how she could redesign her figure for an upcoming TV commercial.

"I worked with her a few times," Steinfeld recalled, "just showed her a few things. No charge or anything. And it just snowballed from there. She recommended me to others." And, after a while, Steinfeld was charging $40 for a half-hour session. The first client who paid him: Priscilla Presley.

"After about a month, something clicked in my head," said Steinfeld. "I said, 'I think I need a PR person."

SPORTS

Coaches and members of the Upland High School varsity football team get in line for dinner during the recent three-day Camp Upland on the school campus.

Camp Upland

The making of a team can sometimes be a curious process.

At Upland High School, the varsity football program worked quite literally around the clock to bring together a group of athletes and mold them into a cohesive unit.

Starting Sunday night and finishing Wednesday night, players and coaches spent three full days in camp, the same concept as pro football teams use, all designed to try and bring individuals together into a group.

From the time the players woke up at 6 a.m. until lights out at 11 p.m., they were involved in football. Players ate team meals together, were involved in chalk talks and conditioning drills.

The camp followed a three-day schedule which called for twice-daily conditioning sessions and classroom instructions. A total of 38 players participated.

According to team mother Cruz Smith, Camp Upland received thousands of dollars in donations, ranging from cash to produce and other foodstuff.

In addition, Richard Mills Associates and Associated Engineers donated the cost of a bar-b-que Sunday afternoon for every football player and his family.

The meal was prepared by Carlos Mata of the Sizzler Restaurant.

Others who contributed to the football camp included Bello's Italian Villa, World of Wine and Cheese, Hollander Cafeteria, Sneakers, Houitz and Sons, Sunkist Growers, Stone Mountain, Haagen-Dazs, Thirtfy Drugs, Sosas' Arrow Meat Co., Coco's of Upland, Upland Bakery, Eden East, Stone Funeral Home, Underwood Farm Market, Ben-Hur Produce, A&W Wholesale Produce, Hamk Industries and Sizzler.

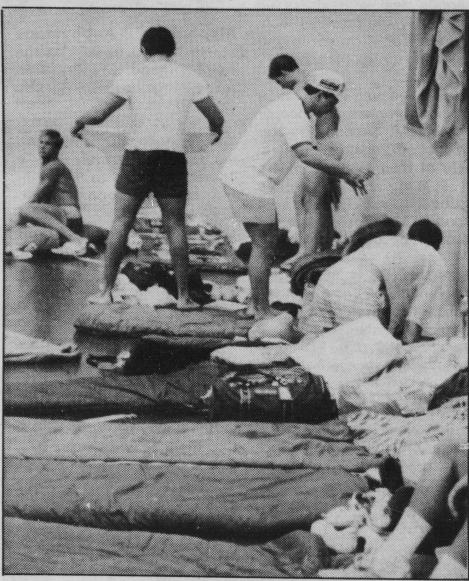

Eight pizza restaurants — Pizza Chalet, Round Table, Lamppost, Napoli's, Dominio's, Shakey's, Straw Hat and Graziano's — also pitched in to donate 20 pizzas for lunch.

"We had to buy very little," said Smith, one of chairman Dwayne Lyon's workers. "We had a crew of about 10 parents who helped with breakfast each morning and Booster Club president Jerry McCetrick was the chef."

Players ate breakfast each morning at the Sizzler, the only off-campus meal. Other meals were prepared at the school cafeteria.

The Scots were scheduled to begin workouts in pads today in preparation for the season opener Sept. 7 against North of Riverside at home.

After dates with Northview and Moreno Valley (on the road), Upland will open Baseline League play Sept. 28 in LaVerne against Damien High School.

After a day of classroom chalk talks and conditioning, football players hit the sack — in this case sleeping bags on the floor of the wrestling room.

There is no cost for the threeday session. It begins Friday from 6 to 10 p.m. and continues Saturday (8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.) and Sunday (8 a.m.-1 p.m.).

Coaches should bring shoes, a ball and a notepad and pen or pencil.

Mt. Baldy run Sept. 3

The 19th annual Mt. Baldy Run-to-the-Top will be held on Labor Day, Sept. 3, beginning at 9 a.m. at the foot of the Mt. Baldy Ski Lift and finishing 4,000 feet higher.

Deadline for early registration is Aug. 31 according to race officials. Late registrations will be taken the morning of the race, but at a higher fee.

The eight-mile run, which starts 16 miles north of Upland, is sponsored by San Antonio Canyon Town Hall and the Mt. Baldy Volunteer Fire Department in co-operation with Mt. Baldy Ski Lift and the U.S. Forest Service.

Starting at the 6,000-foot mark at the foot of the ski lift, the race begins with two miles on paved roadway, followed by four miles of narrow roadway with sharp and steep turns.

After six miles, the course narrows considerably with "catwalk" trails hugging the side of the mountain. The final mile, past the timberline, is the steepest of the course, with the finish atop Mt. San Antonio at 10,050 feet.

"Mt. Baldy offers a smog-free setting," said race official Sandra Hughes. "From the summit, Catalina Island can be seen from one side and the Mojave Desert on the other."

Runners can pick up their tshirts and register late beginning at 7 a.m. on race day. Late registration will last about 90 minutes. Trophies and prizes for men and women will be awarded in each of the following divisions: under 14, 15-18, 19-29, 30-39, 40-49 and 50-plus.

The cost is $8 with t-shirt ($5 without) before Aug. 31, and $10 and $6 for late registration.

Addition informational is available by calling 985-9185 or 982-7379.

"Tools for Keeping Well" is the title of a class for older adults to be offered by Chaffey Adult School, beginning Sept. 11 at the Ontario Civic Center Multi-Purpose Building, 225 E. B St.

There also will be appropriate exercise to music.

Charles M. Brown, former high school principal and parish minister, will instruct the course. In retirement years at Pilgrim Place in Claremont, Brown has been actively involved in wellness education for older adults.

"For many reasons, the basic responsbility for one's own well-being is shifting from the medical system to one's self,' Brown said. "Doctors and hospitals still are vital in cure and prevention. The new accent, (and it's more than a fad) is to maintain and nurture one's own personal well-being through the use of personal and community resources."

What's Wrong
With Monday,
Tuesday,
Wednesday,
Thursday,
Friday and Saturday?
There's nothing wrong with these days...they are all days of the week which will find the people in our community turning to the Classified pages of this paper in seach of a job, a place to live or for some particular item they want to buy or sell.

Because you, as an advertiser, cannot know when a particular need wil develop in someone else's life, it is important that your advertising messages appear each day until you achieve the results you want.
